GROCERS' NOTICE.

In accordance with our desire to give our customers the best possible service at the lowest prices, we have decided to discontinue the practice of allowing a discount of 5 per cent. on retail monthly bills, and therefore give notice that on and after the 1st of November, 1904, no discount whatsoever will be allowed on any groceries sold in our stores. All groceries will be sold at net prices, on a basis of spot cash or thirty days' settlement, and there will be no exception made to this rule. Purchases made in our retail departments up to the 1st of November will, of course, be subject to the 5 per cent. discount as heretofore.

The discount question has frequently been the cause of disputes and dissatisfaction and we believe this arrangement will improve our relations with our patrons, while it will at the same time enable us to more adequately meet the keen competition prevailing in our line of business, and to give our customers the benefit of the lowest prices.

MIMIC JAPAN WAR

MAUI JAPANESE GAVE EXEMPLIFICATION OF WARFARE

TO CELEBRATE MIKADO'S BIRTHDAY—MEN HAD BEEN DRILLED BY VETERANS OF CHINESE WAR.

(Special to The Bulletin.)
Waikuku, Maui, Nov. 5.—November 3d was a gala day among the Mikado's subjects on Maui. During the forenoon, hundreds of Japanese from Hamakua, Paia and Waikuku assembled at Kahului baseball grounds to celebrate the natal day of His Imperial Majesty Mutsuhito, Emperor of Japan and Ruler of the Orient. The men, women and children wore their holiday attire, not the national kimono, but Hawaii's garb, coat and pantaloons for men and boys, and holokus for women and girls, and the looked smart and becoming in their western garments.

Arches and flags constituted the principal decorations at Kahului. Japanese and American flags floated side by side from flagpoles, which spoke in silent terms of the cordial relations existing between the two powers, at least for the present.

Near the grand stand at Kahului baseball grounds was erected an amphitheater in oriental fashion, beneath which the brawny sons of Japan vied with each other in wrestling matches. There were teams from Punahoa, Paia, Hamakua and Waikuku, and the winners in each team won prizes ranging from tubs of saki to yards of white cotton. The grand stand was crowded all day with spectators watching the combats as they struggled on the sand-banked amphitheater for victory, and as each winner threw his opponent, there arose from the vast multitude words of praise for the hero.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon a Japanese army corps from Paia and Hamakua about one hundred strong gave a public exhibition of a military drill at Kahului grounds. The men wore the uniform of the regiment of First Army Corps. Even the Field Marshal and his staff, the mounted corps, the scouts, and the Sledge patrol wore brilliant uniforms, and presented an appearance not to be despised even by military men. While the men were not members of the reserve, yet they have been drilled in military tactics by Japanese in Paia and Hamakua who have served their time in the army and understand battle formations.

The battalion was drawn up for the attack at precisely 2 o'clock. The scouts reported that the Russians were occupying entrenched strongholds on the banks of the Shaka river. The leader counted the call for advance and the battalion advanced in true Japanese fashion in open order. The attacking company fired volleys in various positions, standing and lying down. Then the reserves were called to take the offensive. The hospital corps were kept busy removing the killed and wounded while army surgeons attended to them as they were brought in from the firing line. When the "Charge" was given the battalion ran up in splendid open order formation. The cavalry then rushed to the attack, encountering the right wing of the enemy, which were mowed down like hay before the scythe, the cavalrymen using their sabers (made of tin, which, however, did not make them the soldiers), and by this right flank movement the right wing of the enemy was prevented from retreat, and by this most strategic move of Field Marshal Oyama No. 2, the enemy were taken captive but not without a struggle from the foe. While the entrenched stronghold was being stormed, the "Field Marshal" was all the while using his field glass, and once in a while he would turn his glass to a direction diametrically opposite to the position where the enemy was making a bold resistance.

The exhibition was such a perfect illustration of the perfect mechanism of the Mikado's warriors on the battlefield that the only thing missing was the field pieces with smokeless powder. The horses used by the cavalry were as puny as the ones used by the Japanese cavalry in the field, yet with such materials the wondrous Cosaks of the Czar have met their equals. The celebration ended with illuminations in the evening. Had Prince Fushimi been here his blood would have been thrilled at the sight and it would have reminded him of Nanshan Hill.

"I pursued, but fearing that he might serve me the same that he had done to Shoda I did not continue the chase. Since then I have not seen him at Camp 5, nor has he returned to said camp. His clothing and personal effects are there still. I do not know the cause of the quarrel, nor whether any enmity existed between the two; do not know whether they had been drinking prior to the fight. On entering the tent I saw besides the combatants two other Japanese who were asleep. Both Shoda and Nakamoto were employees of the Hawaiian Sugar Co. Shoda was taken to Dr. Nakagawa's hospital at Hanalei, at whose place he died the following day."

High Sheriff William Henry also received a letter from Sheriff Concy of Kauai stating that the murderer has not as yet been apprehended. Concy expects to come to Honolulu during the week.
